

As the screw pulls the wedge through the opening in the clamp body the offset force to apply pressure towards the tip of the wedge. This makes the clamp stays flat and strait and much more secure in all situations.